Charge your books at the bookstore

You may be eligible to charge books at the Northeast State Bookstore beginning in January. If you have a credit balance on your student account after financial aid has been applied, you may be able to charge books at the Northeast State Bookstore between January 11* and January 22*. If you wish to take advantage of this opportunity simply visit the bookstore between January 11* and January 22* and provide them with:

- a valid ID (student ID or driver's license)
- your student ID number (9XXXXXXXX), and
- your class schedule.

The charges you make at the bookstore will then be deducted from your credit balance and any remaining balance of aid will be mailed to you or direct deposited into your bank account.

To see if you are eligible to make charges at the bookstore, simply log into your NORSTAR account and check your student balance on or before January 11, 2010*. If your account shows a credit balance, you may be eligible to charge books at the bookstore.

If you currently receive a paper bookstore voucher from any office on campus, please contact that office for specific instructions.
